

led that he has done harm enough. Just after the war we had hopes of Hampton. He went into politics handsomely and gave the negroes good advice; but he lost his head, and he, perhaps, more than any other, finally kicked over the democratic basket of eggs. He (by untimely boasting) fixed attention to the fact that the only vital point in the democratic platform was his declaration that the reconstruction laws were "unconstitutional, revolutionary and void," and this opened the eyes of the people to a view of the ultimate result of democratic victory. The nation could never give power to a party whose policy Wade Hampton could dictate; and the best thing that this "statesman" can do for the democratic cause is to betake himself to retirement and mortification; but he must not publish his meditations.

AGENTS AGENT TOWN.

The watermen season being over, we anticipate, in unison with the singing of sweet voices Clara Louise, the antics and vocalization of the rival opera bouffes companies, which old tragedy on Broadway and Sixth avenue, the ministrations of the pastors, organists and artists in the fashionable churches, an unusually brilliant season. "Fifty," since Water street has been made the arena for, as a missionary society expressed it, "restoring souls to the Devil," has become quite fashionable and pervades every degree of society, from the family of the retired seafarer to the picker-up of unconserved trides in the shape of cinders and bones. It is now certain that New York can never meet with the judgment awarded to Solomon and Gomorrah or the visitation of Arica—there are too many of the "eleven" in it for that.

They have got as far up as "Froomestreet on Broadway with the Albany job. The contractors who have this little mill for the manufacture of "Papers" running, give out that they may get to Houston street by thoroughfare. Meanwhile there is positively "no thoroughfare" on Broadway.

Old Trinity is becoming angelic—so much so that his serious thoughts of giving her a pair of wings. If, in her soaring heavenward, the ancient dame should take it into her pate to gather up the "wickeds" of the gold and stock gamblers who, in Wall street, directly under her nose worship Mammon, calling themselves of her worship, and then "drap em," she would be doing a great moral if not spiritual work. What to a refined mind can be more horrible than those ensanguined pursuits known as bull-goring and bear-bating? Kite-flying and pocker-picking are nothing to them.

The grand divisions into which believers in the Old and New Testaments are divided, and the equality of thought and toleration recognized in this land, "what the bird of freedom soars so high," are admirably illustrated by the three religious edifices now in course of construction on Fifth avenue, between Forty-third and Fifty-third streets. These are the Jewish synagogue, in the Moorish style; the Catholic cathedral, in the purest, and St. Thomas' (Protestant Episcopal) church, in decorated Gothic. If not in amplitude they will in beauty and finish surpass anything now extant.

Coal is coal just now, even if dealers, in the largeness of their hearts and the preservation of their consciences, give you 1,700 pounds to the ton. The market is stocked with grapes—large, ripe, rich, tempting, luscious grapes. But hucksters hold them at such confoundingly bold figures that, notwithstanding their abundance, even old Midas is forced to turn up his rubicund nose at and pronounce them sour. Midas, as a paterfamilias, is right—the figures make them acid, especially to the homines whose incomes are not recorded on any of Uncle Samuel's tax lists and whose wallets are guileless of greenbacks.

THE WEATHER.

When I didn't blow yesterday! Not a great wind, liberal blow of tempered autumn wind, but a pearly, biting, snarling, snarling nor'easter that made birds mockery of the streaming sunlight. It was a treacherous breeze, indeed. It took people on the most cautious habits unawares—caught them on the shady side of the street in their semi-summer garments, pierced them through and through, left a shiver in many a nose, thrust bronchitis down many a throat and went on its way in grim rejoicing. The change was prodigious. The day before everybody was admiring the beauty of the Indian summer. Yesterday morning this admiration was snuffed in its budding fulness and the cruel alteration of atmosphere anatomized in every given breeze. Some pronounced it delightful, but the majority looked upon it as an unreasonable joke. The weather of the season in the region of Yorkville rejoiced to say they discovered the first fall of the season yesterday morning. The old proverb says when this pleasant vision occurs on the 17th of this month we may look for a season of such agreeable visits during the winter. At Hudson's great store, in the Herald Building, the thermometer showed a record of 70 degrees, and before three o'clock it stood at forty-seven, and before eight o'clock it was at forty-one.

The weather throughout the country. LEWISTON, Me., Oct. 17, 1898. It is snowing heavily here. The thermometer has fallen rapidly since yesterday.

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 17, 1898. Snow fell here to-day from ten o'clock this morning until about two this afternoon, and some still remains on the ground. There is more in amount than has fallen so early in the season since our remembrance.

BOSTON, Oct. 17, 1898. A thick northeast snow storm commenced here at nine o'clock. The thermometer indicates forty degrees.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 17, 1898. A northwest snow storm is raging here, which commenced at about eight o'clock this morning. The air is thick with snow and the ground is quite white.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 17, 1898. It is snowing fast. The thermometer indicates thirty degrees.

ROCHESTER, Oct. 17, 1898. Snow fell here last night to the depth of two and a half inches. It is freezing this morning.

NEWBURGH, Oct. 17, 1898. There was a brisk snow storm last night south of Watertown, Jefferson county, and at Mexico, Oswego county.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 17, 1898. The ground is slightly covered with snow this morning. There is snow on the line of the Erie railroad between Sayreham and Dunkirk, from one to four inches deep, and about half an inch on the rest of the line.

Particulars of the Seizure of the Steamboat Hesper.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 17, 1898.
The destruction of the arms on board the steamer Hesper is still the cause of much excitement. The democratic papers assert that the arms were destroyed by radicals for the purpose of making political capital; also that the arms were not the property of the state of Arkansas. The republican papers, on the other hand, assert that the arms were destroyed by Kl. Kux. Captain John Ford, of the steamer Hesper, which was captured by the federal raiders, gives the particulars of the seizure, which are in substance as follows:—

On Thursday afternoon for Pickering, having a large tow. The tug reached her destination and landed a line, but had scarcely made fast when the levee was covered by men, some of whom were armed with revolvers. They quickly boarded the tug, took possession of the pilot house and engine room, and ordered the captain to start down the river. He accordingly ordered one of the crew to cast off the line, and in a few minutes the tug was rapidly steaming down the river through the chute. Upon taking possession of the new command kept a vigilant eye upon the crew, not allowing any one of them to leave his post. The engineer was not permitted to oil the engine. When approaching Cat Island, twenty-five miles below, and near the Arkansas shore, Captain Ford was ordered to stop the tug, and to allow the men to board. The tug was then tied up to the shore. During the trip the leaders of the party informed Captain Ford that they intended to overthrow the government and to destroy the army, and to respect all other property. In obedience to the orders of the captain, the tug was then towed to the shore, where the men landed. A large quantity of ammunition in the hold, marked "audacious," was also thrown overboard. The party then quietly returned to the tug, leaving the steamer in possession of their crew. Captain Houston, of the Hesper, and his brother made for the woods as soon as the tug moved. The Hesper was then towed to the President's Island, in the chute below the city, and was run aground. The raiders were taken ashore in a skiff which was signalled to start. The tug was then towed to the shore, where the men landed. The tug returned to the city this morning.
